

*T*omorrow and *T*omorrow and *T*omorrow...

With the Daedalus Integrated Writing Environment (DIWE), tomorrow your students could...

- Brainstorm about Lady Macbeth's motivation
- Exchange mail about Shakespeare's portrayal of men & women
- Share drafts on Macbeth's mental states using electronic class files
- Build on-line bibliographies for research papers on Renaissance Life
- Respond in peer review to each other's papers and ideas
- Discuss Shakespeare's imagery in a real-time InterChange® session

Join the hundreds of teachers (including the software's authors) who use DIWE for English instruction – and across the curriculum – to make the most of every day in your computer classroom.

With one piece of software, your students can use word processing, electronic communication, invention, & revision tools. The Daedalus Integrated Writing Environment (DIWE) can fulfill all your software needs in a single program.

"So it be eloquent and fun of invention"

Twelfth Night, III, ii

Exploring ideas, brainstorming, gathering thoughts for papers and classroom discussion – all come quickly and easily with Daedalus.

Michael Benedict, of Fox Chapel Area High School in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, uses DIWE to help students work through the writing process from beginning to end. With the Daedalus Invent tool, students examine soliloquies from Macbeth closely, looking at how the protagonist changes over the play's five acts.

"And ample interchange of sweet discourse"

III Richard, V, iii

Benedict's students also explore their ideas with the InterChange® tool, thinking through the arguments they plan to make in their papers and responding to their classmates in a real-time discussion.
